ANNIE'S SLAYERS.

Young Andrew Panning, Her Betrothed. Held as Accessory to Her Murder.

New Complications In the Cigarette Girl's Tragedy.

Inquest Postponed by the Coroner Till To-Morrow.

Silently, yet quickly, the meshes of the persons who were in any way concerned in the death of beautiful Annie Goodwin. the eigarette girl, who was killed by malpractice at the hands, it is alleged, of Dr. Henry G. McGonigal, of Harlem.

The police who are hauling in the drag-nets, found in it this morning another fish-not so large or important as the others who are already in the hands of the law, but still a factor in the case, inasmuch as he is a connecting link in an important feature of the tragedy.

He is young Andrew L. Fanning, son of the late Superintendent of Public Schools John Fanning, and he lives at 149 East One Hundred and Seventeenth

THE DEAD GIBL'S DUPLICITY.

His advent into the case gives it a very romentic turn. He loved and was engaged to be married to Annie Goodwin and he had no reason, up to the time of her sickness, to believe that she was other than a pure, affectionate girl.

Detectives Price and Mott yesterday called on Mrs. Collins, the landlady of the boarding-house at 152 East One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street where Annie Goodwin spent July 2, 3 and the Fourth, and had a long interview with her.

They closely questioned her regarding the visit of a young man giving the name of Drew to Annie July 4. They succeeded

She told them that her son was not at home: that he was away on his vacation. The detectives casually mentioned the name of Annie Goodwin, but Mrs. Faun ng said she had never heard of any young woman by that name. Nevertheless, Detective Price asked for paper and pen. He wrote a short note to young Fanning, telling him that his pres ence was immediately required at the Fast One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street police station, and warning him that he, the detective, would be under the painful necessity of hunting him down it he did not answer the summons. FANNING COMES INTO COURT. Young Fanning got back from his vacation very quickly, and this morning about 7.30 o'clock he walked into the East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street police station and announced himself. "I sur Andrew L. Fanning," he said to the Sergeant, "I have come to give myself up. 1 The Sergeant held him until Price ar rived, and the latter immediately cross examined the young man.

Fanning is a small, slim young man with a lean cadaverous looking face adorned by a slight yellow mustache In many ways he resembles ' Gus' Harrison.

He was visibly distressed, and when he was telling his story to Detective Price his eyes filled with tears, which finally escaped and rolled down his cheeks in rapid auccession. "I loved Annie Goodwin," he said

Manufacturers Concede Everything and the Agreement Signed.

All the Men Will Go Back to Work To-Morrow Morning.

The strike of the 5,000 cloakmakers at last positively settled.

The conference composed of the Manufacturers' Executive Committee and a committee from the strikers by Leader Baron-Dees and Coroner Levy were in session all afternoon in the Prescott House, and at 5 o'clock an agreement was reached satisfactory to the bosses and the men. The manufacturers made a genera concession.

When the conference came together every manufacturer except Mr. G. Schwab was in favor of surrendering everything to get the men back to work.

Mr. Schwab declared that he would drag-net of Justice are entangling the countenance only the original agreement. There was an overwhelming majority against him, and the two committees evolved an agreement which was signed by both sides.

some, however, the market would have "boomed," instead of rising by eighths and quarters.

The Granger stocks were strengthened by an increase in carnings of $18,844 by the Atchison for the second week of July and of $30,000 by the St. Paul for the third week of July and of $30,000 by the St. Paul for the third week.

The boys had their usual excitement in Sugar Certificates. The price bounded up at the opening, and, after resting a couple of points, rallied again during the afternoon. The insiders are credited with making heavy purchases, but those who get their information about the proposed reorganization in shreds and patches are proceeding very cautiously.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] Sanaroga Race Thace, July 24.—The twenty-seventh meeting of the Saratoga Association began to-day with unfavorable Both the track and attendance were fair. lowever, and the racing good.

The first was a dash of five furlongs, in which Blue Rock won handily After the first race the track was a perfect sea of mud, and from that time on it was a mud-horse day and sure enough it proved

In the Flash Stakes Sallie McClelland was In the Flash Stakes Sallie McClelland was the favorite, but she could not do better than to run second to Montersy, an 8 to 1 shot.

Again in the Travers Stakes the favorite was leaten, the race going to Dwyer Brothers' Sir John, with Fronteine second.

The surprise of the day came when King Crab, a 20 to 1 chance, imped out in the lead in the fourth and never relinquished it, defeating the favorite, Lavinia Belle, by a good length.

MONMOUTH PARK BACE TRACK, July 24 .-This was the tenth day of the meeting at Monmonth Park and there was a larger crowd present then was expected as quite a large number of the regulars went to Saratoga last night.

The crowd saw nothing in the first race but Meridan and Defaulter, and they pounded both of them merrily all over the ring, with the former going to the post a elight favorite.

elight favorite.

It was only a walk for Meriden, and she won in a canter. Defaulter ran a very poor race, and was not one, two, three at the finish. He will very likely surprise the talent in a low days, for he does not seem to be ready yet for a bruising race.

Notwithstanding that Her Highness was asked to concede a ton of weight the talent made her the favorite for the Elizabeth Stakes for fillies.

The weight proved too much for her and she could only get third to Tulia Blackburn and Bibelot. Her Highness pulled up very lame after the race.

Prince Royal, Reporter, Eurus, Badge and Tristan were starters for the Harvest Handicap, and a better field could not have been brought together. It was a good race to the last quarter when Prince Royal drew away and won handily amid great applause.

FIRST RACE. Handicap Sweepstakes, $20 each, with $1,000 added, of which $200 to second, $100 to third; six furiougs.

The Race-Meriden, Volunteer and Defaulter were the most prominent horses to the last furlong, where Meriden drew away and won easily by four lengths, Major Daly was second, three lengths before Volunteer. Time-1.13,
